6. A photo of your ID card (passport/residence permit, etc.) is stored in the computer for manual verification of your identity in case you fail to pass the identification before the exam.

（ⅴ） Rules for Judging Cheating and Abnormal Examination Behavior (Please read carefully)

1. To ensure the fairness and impartiality of AMC online exams, the exams are monitored by real-time video surveillance and random capture to prevent cheating. Failure to turn on or leave the camera during the exam will be ruled as a disciplinary offence and the examination result will be invalid.

2. Before the exam, you need to close the computer applications (such as anti-virus software, software not related to the exam, and all browsers other than those used in the exam platform) that will show pop-ups to avoid pop-ups affecting the normal exam. The exam process requires a full-screen examination, leaving the examination page (including pop-up windows) for more than 15 times will be judged as cheating and the exam will be automatically turned in.

3. Candidates must take the exam independently and ensure that no one other than the candidate appears around the candidate during the exam; substitution, guidance by others, etc. will be judged as a disciplinary offence and the exam results will be invalid.

4. Candidates who close the examination interface and re-login on their own during the exam process, and other non-essential actions such as computer reboot that are verified not to be caused by system bugs, will be judged as examination disciplinary actions and the examination results will be invalid.

5. Candidates' actions such as looking through books, notes or checking information through the Internet or looking to the right or left, entrapping, snooping or copying will be ruled as examination disciplinary actions and the examination results will be invalid.

6. Candidates who consult through cell phone telephone connection or directly voice or word consultation with others will be judged as examination disciplinary actions and the examination results will be invalid.

7. Please be sure to strictly abide by the rules of the online exam. Candidates who are recorded by the system or the supervisor as violating or cheating during the exam will cancel their exam results.

8. Candidates must finish the personal matters before starting the exam, and must not leave the exam room for water or toilets in the middle of the exam, etc. Leaving the exam room is considered cheating, and the examination results will be invalid.

9. Other behaviors that affect the fairness of the exam.
